saga...

... the individuality in the branches springs from the commonness of the root, the mind is the branch, the man is the root . . .

... there are people ... different kinds of people ...

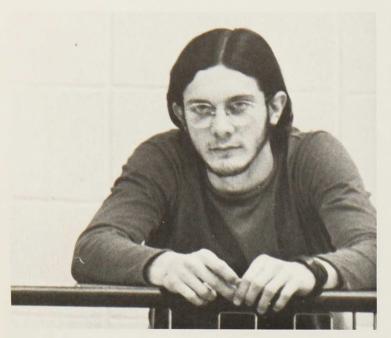

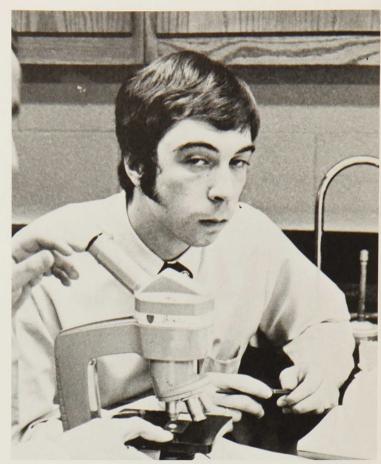

If this lounge is in the same filthy condition the same filthy condition today as it was yesterday, it will be locked for an indefinite period college union Board on may material to make the based

... a student's life is a merry flow of cement soda ...

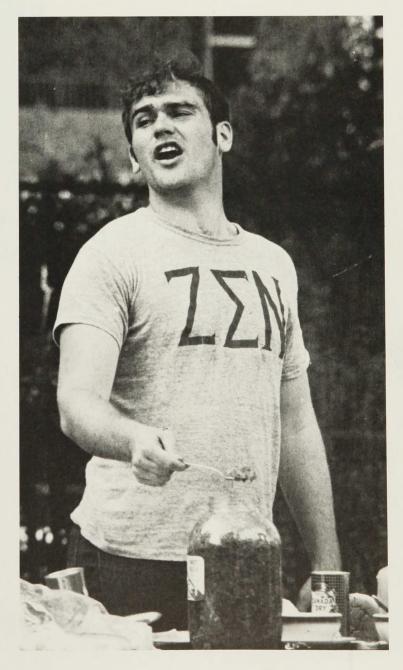

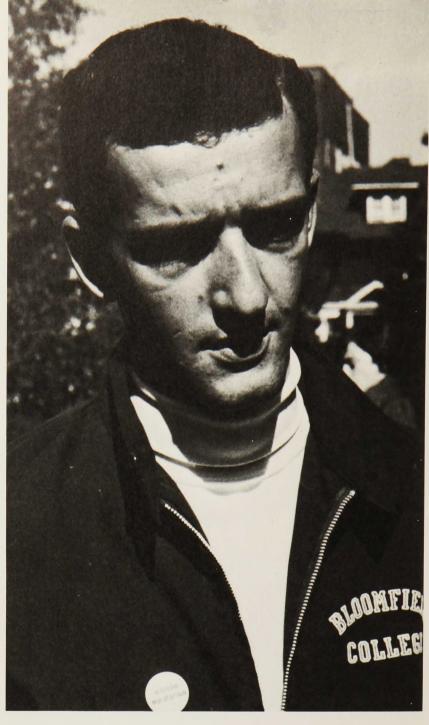

... rippling over expressions ...

... with faces like mirrors, today reflecting tomorrow; tomorrow, yesterday; yesterday forever...

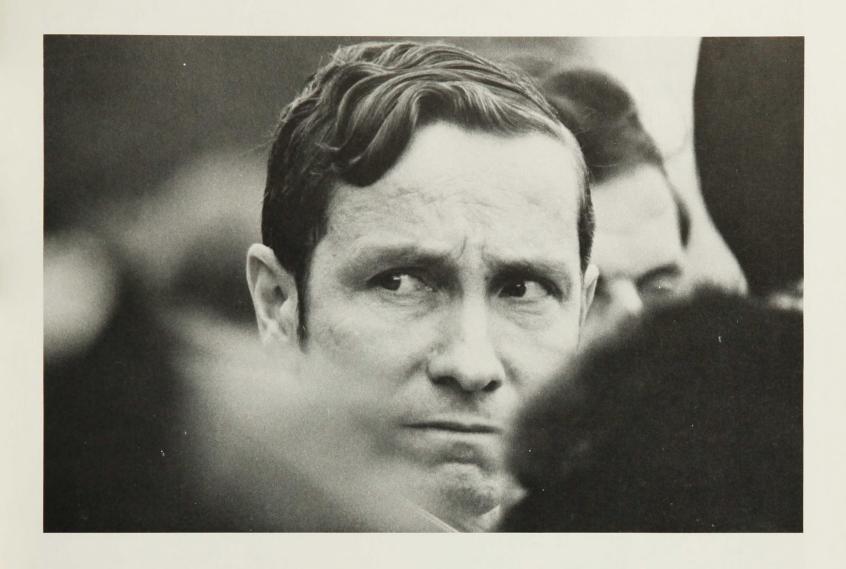

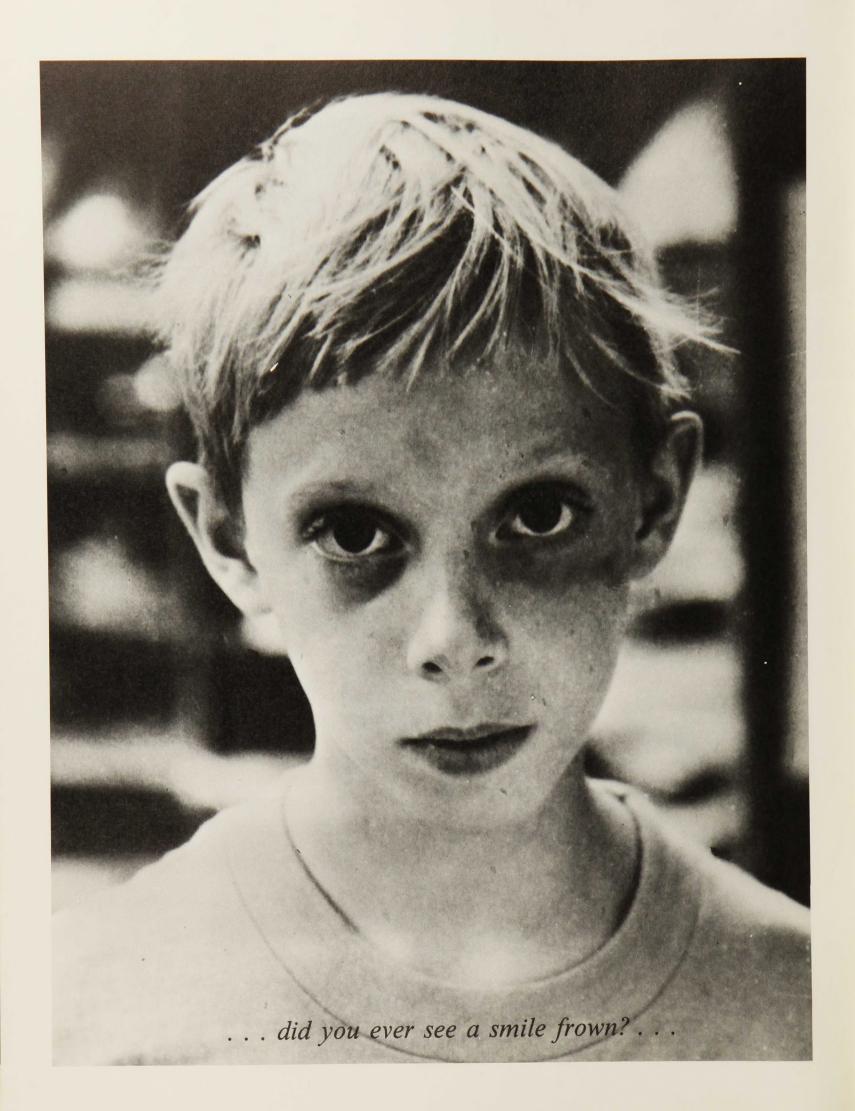

... knowing the frustration of pulling on a pushed stone and singing a knell . . .

... the loneliness of being a piece of rock candy in a bag of juicy fruits ...

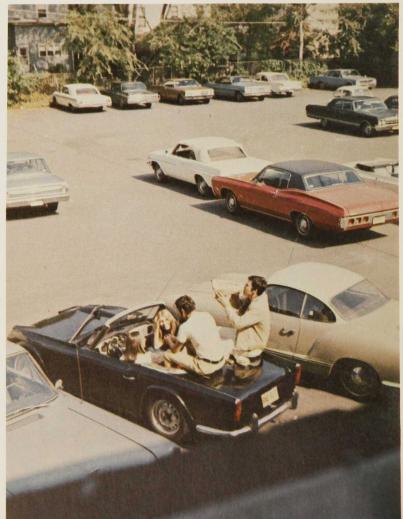

... life can be an unreality,
based on superficiality,
never really grasped
by our mentality
too much legality
... but together we can feel the warmth of tomorrow . . .

... eat some, sleep some, study some, laugh some, dance some, go to class some, never letting the mind master one stage of your life . . .

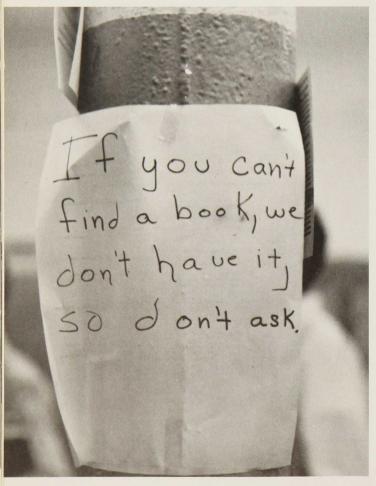

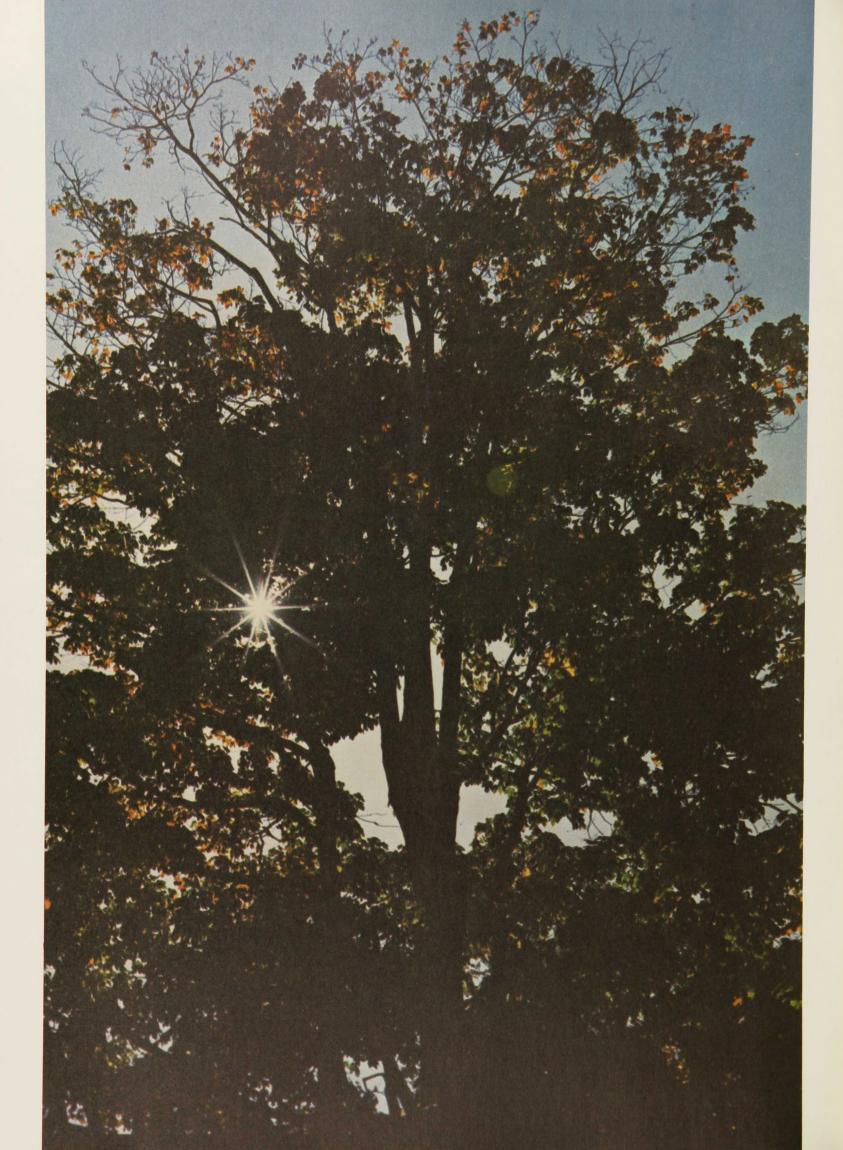

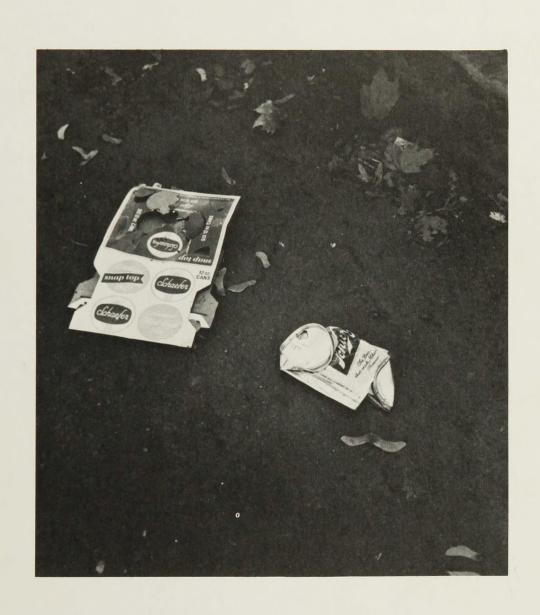

... student life revolves on a wheel of fire, desire, confusion, happy relief ... freefeelin' all the way through four years ... then june ...

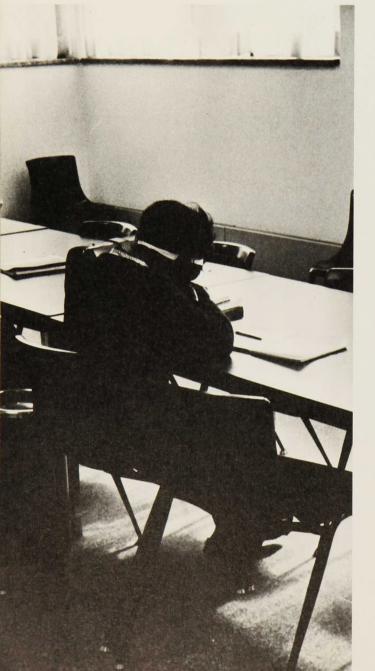

... and for the mind:
mysterious that it may be—
"food"...

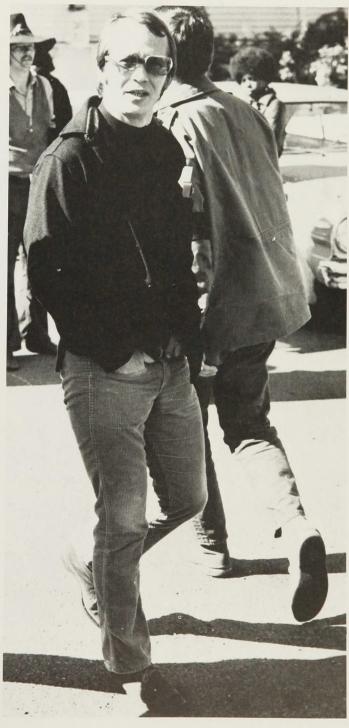

... grafting ancients with moderns has given this place an old newness...

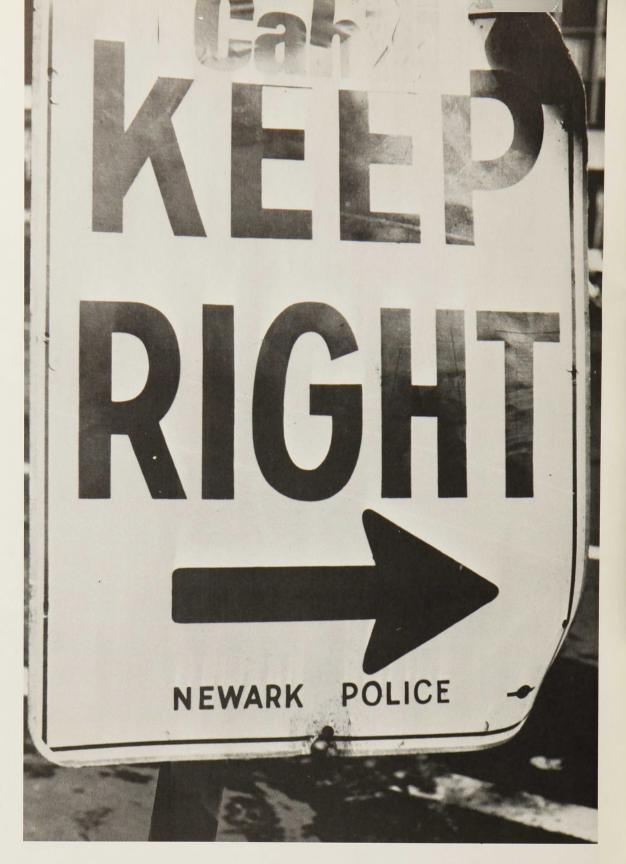

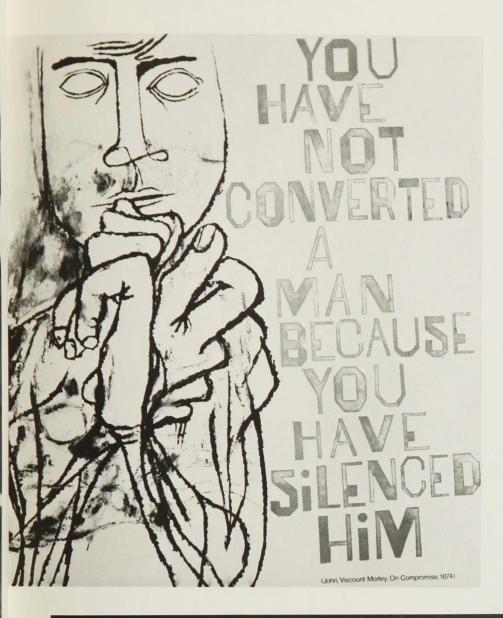

. . . and the signs of the times are everywhere; issues are named, steps are taken . . .

The Minuteman

The Minuteman rises. God bless the Minuteman. Soaring higher and higher, later and later under the gentle but firm hands of monolithic Bill Chemerka and red powered Rich Fox. The story melts to two in the morning and the fearless duo strain and sweat to obtain the proper filler. From out of the depths of despair climbs Kathy Ericson, typing and tidying up for the giants of journalism and the Minuteman takes on new breath and depth. The BCSA gives in a million dollars, advertising manager, Ralph Fredericks bleeds the rocks of Bloomfield for more, the press rolls and the flock gathers. PAZ and Nancy add culture to the gem of the ocean, George makes the scene, and Jesse tells it like it is. Sidney socks it to you and Athletic Department is still seething. Zabu joins and Judy departs. Lynn Walker picks up the slag along with Rose to give us the most thorough circulation department in Jersey or Nebraska. Lynn Staudderman stood by and helped us through evil Thursdays * Alka Selzer helped on Friday. Jim Wright outdrank us; Jim Wollner out talked us; and together we began to outdo ourselves and the Minuteman rose higher and so did Bill Gross, who put us all on ice with his hot stories. Elaine typed and wrote her way to glory as did venerable and teetotling Ann Moore. The Sports Department cruised along, riding on their former crest with tenacious Tony Wicks leading the wave, followed by the Norwegians answer to Fred Astaire * Enn Poeldnurk, and Mister Socialitus Big Al Franklin. Randy Spencer gave up and might have run for the border; No one knows, it's a secret. Nancy Muller and Kathy Ditzel were doing fine until the Animals gave them grief. Tommie Basnight and Teddie Best chipped in their ditties as did more and more students and the Minuteman was the voice of the students, and it grew and grew * Bill became a Senator, Rich a College Press Representative, Bill an orientation staff member, Rich an ecologist and non driver. The final paper was a biggy and so was the MMParty, and a lot of heads. The Bill was pretty high too, but not as high as the staff. Shades of Grendel -Bill. did you and Kathy D. really fold the paper? with the lights off? Did Kathy E. really slip and fall on floor for a half hour? Does Glenn Braswell know and isn't telling? Why were her keys found between the cushions of the couch? Tune in on us next year for the answers but remember ... The staff will return, the editors will return, the Minuteman will return.

Long live The Minuteman ... end it.

i've got those flashback blues again
four years have come and gone.
      life goes on . . .
time to step out with my sneakers through a genuine artificial shoe leather world . . . but people tell me brown sneakers don't make it.
         d i sit at this machine
               wanting to type out my future
       but still wanting an element of surprise not distress
type it right out . . . black & white years ago a man could sit back and where he would be in ten years.
                    nowadays we can't guess
                    any farther than three (3) mths.
       . life laughing
       singing
       whoring
       dancing
                      playing a game . . . we're all playing a game called . . . existence laughing.
                      called . . . existence
                      yep, social darwinism brings it back home . . . in a world run by half-(1/2)-assed idiots making the best of who? . . . not you
the more i readseefeel . . . feel the more i believe in the fittest surviving... to survive will be the legacy left to our children . . . but i'll still try my damndest even though bertrand is dead and the rich stay . . . fed
                   and a new job
four long years.
                          tuesday . . . 1:45 p.m. . . . to the park
                           sat down
                           got up
                           went back to work . . .
                           too much work
                           shuts the mind off.
                           having no time to think
             a blade of grass must be chewed before life can be enjoyed) the church on the green tolls 8:00p.m. . .
                               8:00a.m. in indo-china
and tomorrow i'll have clean sneakers . . .
                                             god
                                              bless amerikkkard

Dear Mar:
Never leave your shutter cocked and don't screw your cameracase to the tri-pod.

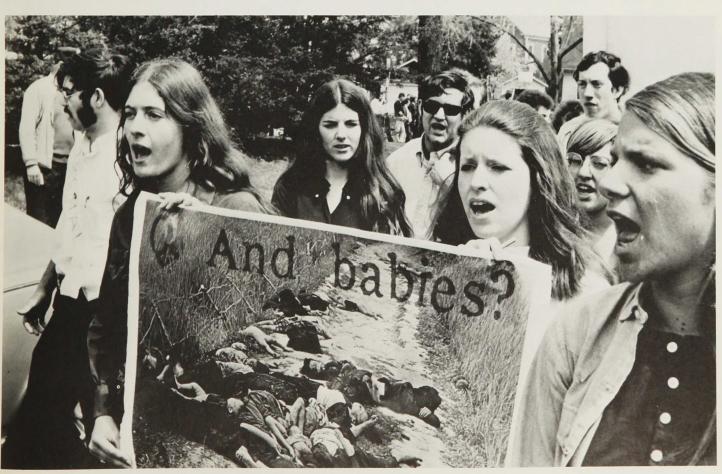

... there are feelings, different kinds of feelings ...

... feeling like a paper plane on runway #3 at kennedy . . .

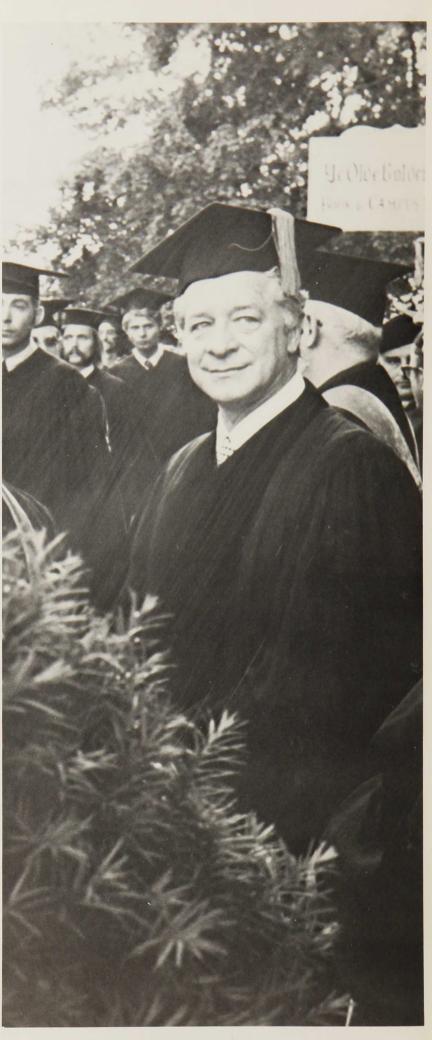

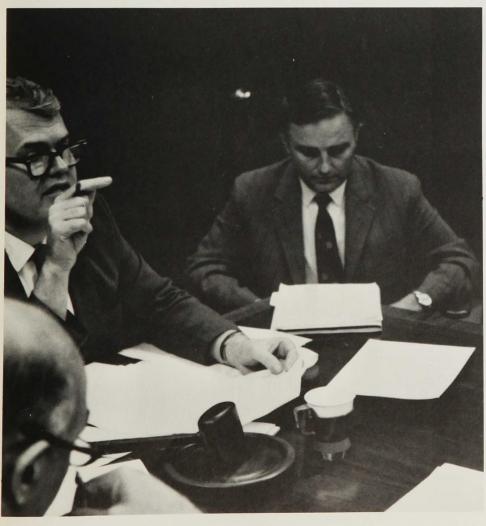

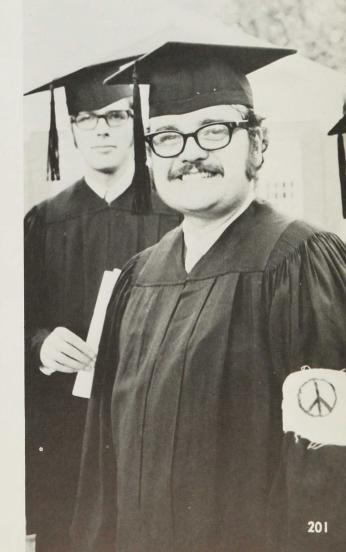

... voicing social secrets known by a silent majority ...

... while ecstasy as thalia and melpomene wears many masks ...

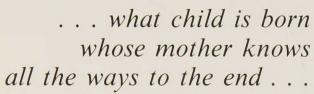

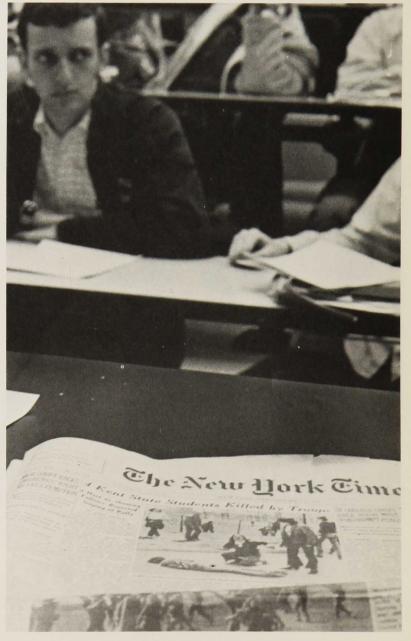

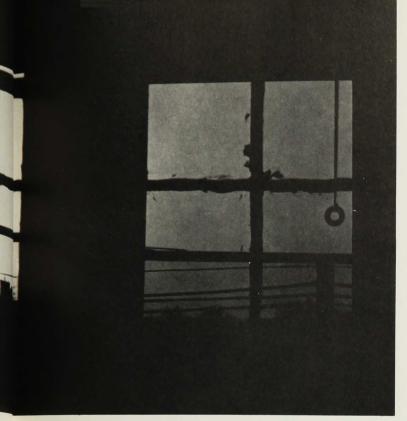

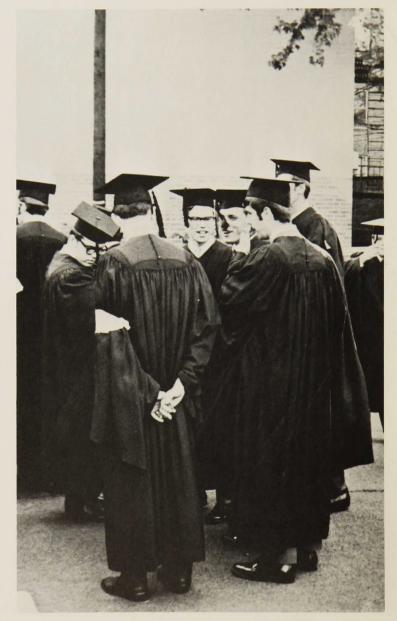

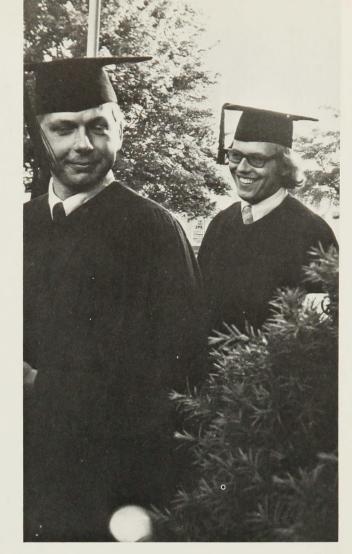

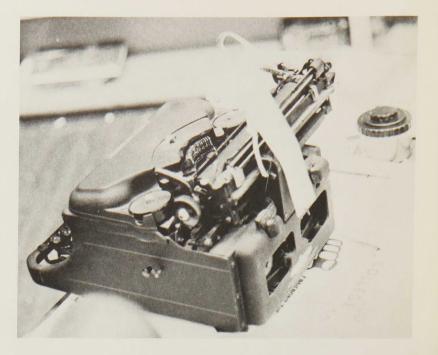

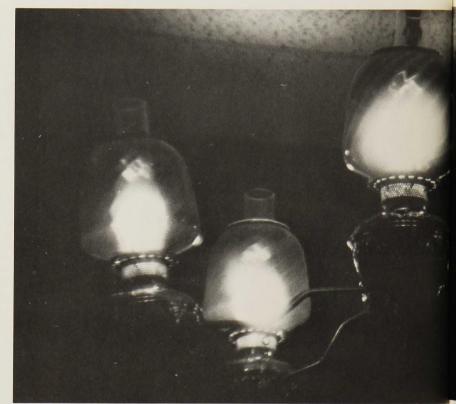

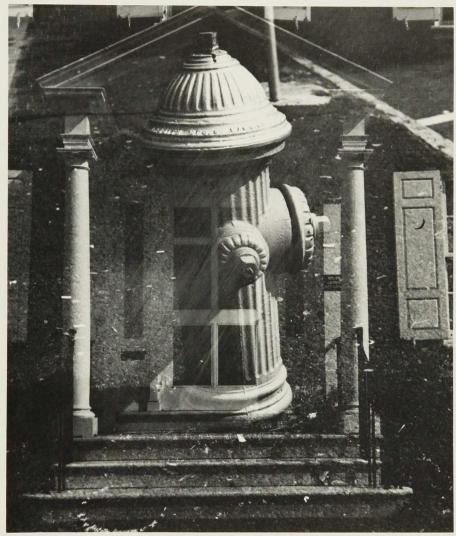

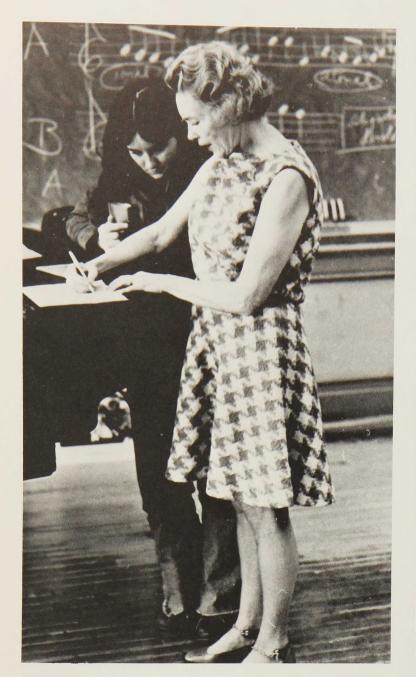

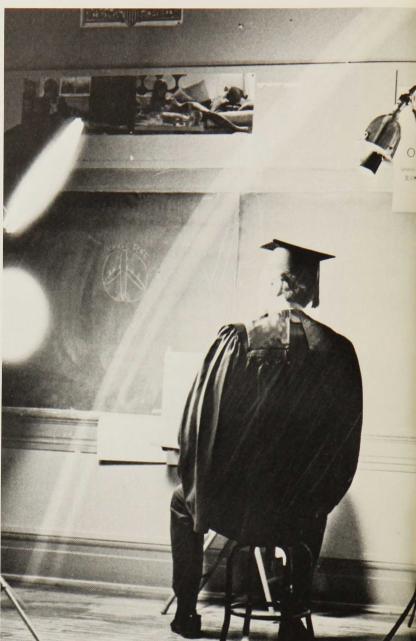

... what end is worth it all, you ask . . .

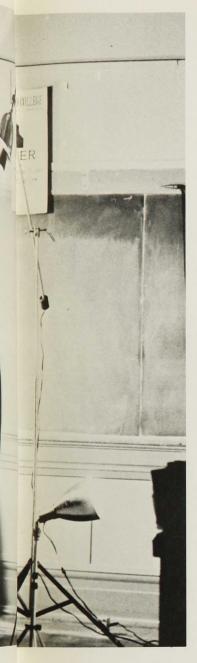

... the satisfaction of the artist, i answer, and all we are artists . . .

... young babies, old fossils, adolescent balls o' fire, we all have desires, that's why people are people and purple is purple . . .
